MERIWETHER'S AND THE CAPITOL SHARE HISTORY

Nicholas Meriwether I came to the Colony of Virginia from Kent County, England around 1649 and immediately began acquiring large land tracts, including the historic Island House on Jamestown Island which he purchased from Nathaniel Bacon in 1656. His son, Nicholas II, through a combination of purchases and land grants, became the second largest landholder in the Colony, acquiring in excess of 33,000 acres.

Both Meriwether Lewis (of the Lewis & Clark Expedition) and Marie (Rie) Meriwether Godsey (restaurant proprietor and MG President) are descendants of Nicholas Meriwether. It is said that Nicholas' goal in amassing the large land holdings was to keep himself and future generations "free from the vexations of making a living, and able to devote their lives to leisure and scholarly pursuits." Alas, the majority of the property was sold to finance the "leisure and scholarly pursuits" of prior, not current generations!
